
Atheist By Default

Posted by drunkassteve - 2008/05/11 09:58

Hi all, I am Steve. I am an atheist by default, like all newborn babies (remember, when one of your friends gives birth, be sure to inform them on how cute their new atheist is). I am one of the very few to have never been indoctrinated. You know how on many electronic devices there is a "reset to default" button? Well, I have never had to hit that button. That button is still a virgin. Although I must say, that button is swelling. I think it may be pregnant. Oh my Carl Sagan! My "reset to default" button is pregnant. It will be a virgin birth. Let me examine. Oh, nevermind, it's just my testes.

I am a gigantic fan of blasphemy with humor. I am of the Death Metal culture, so you can expect my posts to be rather extreme sometimes. For these reasons, and my fanaticism for alcohol, I will never be a leading member of any atheist group, and for good reason. I do not want to be a leading member to ruin the reputation of the group, and I want to stand alone. However, I still financially support this group, along with The Skeptics Society, Richard Dawkins Foundation, American Atheists, and James Randi Educational Foundation.

This forum does not have as many posts as it deserves. I just registered today and plan to post many in the future. Hopefully my "controversial" posts will create new members and more postings. I already have one post in the "Rants" section, and that's where many of them will be. I hope to stir up controversy to encourage people to sign up to respond to me, for or against me.

=====